UNIT - 1

"Poultry" is a term used for any kind of domesticated bird, captive-raised for its utility, and traditionally the word has been used to refer to wildfowl (Galliformes) and waterfowl (Anseriformes) but not to cagebirds such as songbirds and parrots. "Poultry" can be defined as domestic fowls, including chickens, turkeys, geese and ducks, raised for the production of meat or eggs and the word is also used for the flesh of these birds used as food.

The word "poultry" comes from the West & English "pultrie", from Old French pouletrie, from pouletier, poultry dealer, from poulet, pullet. The word "pullet" itself comes from Middle English pulet, from Old French polet, both from Latin pullus, a young fowl, young animal or chicken. The word "fowl" is of Germanic origin (cf. Old English Fugol, German Vogel, Danish Fugl)

The Encyclopædia Britannica lists the same bird groups but also includes guinea fowl and squabs (young pigeons) In R. D. Crawford's Poultry breeding and genetics, squabs are omitted but Japanese quail and common pheasant are added to the list, the latter frequently being bred in captivity and released into the wild.<sup>[7]</sup> In his 1848 classic book on poultry, Ornamental and Domestic Poultry: Their History, and Management, Edmund Dixon included chapters on the peafowl, guinea fowl, mute swan, turkey, various types of geese, the muscovy duck, other ducks and all types of chickens including bantams.

UNIT -2 INFRASTRUCTURE

Ensure the safety and quality of Raw Material, a backward integration of setting up our own poultry farm of 0.6 million layers are housed in 12 sheds of each 50,000 capacity. The annual production capacity is around 164 million eggs. The chick and grower sheds with capacity to hold 100 thousand birds each is located in a different location. Strict adherence to structural and operational biosecurity measures ensures disease prevention. Laboratory attached to farm routinely analyze water, tissues, shell egg samples to ensure the health of the birds and the quality of eggs. Day to day sanitation, proper disinfection and potable water helps to maintain birds in good health. The birds are fed a highly nutritious, balanced diet composed primarily of maize, grains with vitamins and minerals added. Compliance to food safety is ensured with the certification of ISO 22000. Incinerator facility helps to safely dispose of the dead birds.

UNIT – 3 TYPES OF BIRDS

Poultry are domesticated birds kept by humans for their eggs, their meat or their feathers. These birds are most typically members of the superorder Galloanserae (fowl), especially the order Galliformes (which includes chickens, quails, and turkeys). Poultry also includes other birds that are killed for their meat, such as the young of pigeons (known as squabs) but does not include similar wild birds hunted for sport or food and known as game. The word "poultry" comes from the French/Norman word poule, itself derived from the Latin word pullus, which means small animal.

The domestication of poultry took place several thousand years ago. This may have originally been as a result of people hatching and rearing young birds from eggs collected from the wild, but later involved keeping the birds permanently in captivity. Selective breeding for fast growth, egg-laying ability, conformation, plumage and docility took place over the centuries, and modern breeds often look very different from their wild ancestors. Although some birds are still kept in small flocks in extensive systems, most birds available in the market today are reared in intensive commercial enterprises.

Together with pig meat, poultry is one of the two most widely eaten types of meat globally, with over 70% of the meat supply in 2012 between them;<sup>[1]</sup> poultry provides nutritionally beneficial food containing high-quality protein accompanied by a low proportion of fat. All poultry meat should be properly handled and sufficiently cooked in order to reduce the risk of food poisoning.

UNIT – 4 MARKETING OF ALL PRODUCTS

Poultry Industry in Egypt has made rapid progress in the last four decades. Its development has not only been in size but also in productivity, technology and quality of its products. The Egyptian Poultry Industry provides direct and indirect employment to over than five million people. Through a well-planned indigenization and acclimatization, the productivity has been improved systematically to the levels on par with the developed countries. Marketing is a system to push products to the market and to highlight the relative advantages of the product that differs from other products after taking all the quality measures that make the customer buy a certain product and refrain from buying the other product.
